The strategic placement of the cameras is the key to the CCTV system and relies on the observation of the camera's input on monitors. Because the cameras communicate with monitors and video recorders across private coaxial cable runs or wireless communication links, they gain the designation "closed-circuit" to indicate that access to their content is limited by design only to those able to see it.

CCTV is mainly used for:

- Maintaining perimeter security in medium- to high-secure areas and installations.
- Observing behaviour of incarcerated inmates and potentially dangerous patients in medical facilities.
- Traffic monitoring.
- Building and grounds security.
- Obtaining a visual record of activities in situations where it is necessary to maintain proper security or access controls (for example, in a diamond cutting or sorting operation; in banks, casinos, or airports).
